How are fine wines created? Start in the sun-drenched Applegate Valley. Plant the noble varieties perfectly suited to the deep fertile soils. Give them tender loving care harvesting them at the peak of perfection. Then in the winery, use the time-tested, traditional methods so that the gentle and unhurried handling cooperates with nature in bringing out the rich opulent flavors of the Cabernet Sauvignon, the color and clarity of the Merlot, the complexity of the Pinot noir, and the mouth-filling intensity of the Chardonnay. Enjoy a glass of pleasure from The Academy tonight. Visit Applegate Valley, Oregon's newest appellation.

Visitors welcome: Tasting and tours seven days a week 11-5 daily; call first for major holidays.

Foris is the Pacific Northwest's most southern winery, located in the coastal Siskiyou Mountains just six miles from the Oregon/California border. Our estate vineyards grow in the western reach where mountain and oceanic influence is strongest. Here Foris has pioneered growing Alsatian and Burgundian varieties on the varied soils of the Siskiyou terrace. Working with select growers, Foris has helped develop Oregon's other red wines: Bordeaux varieties grown in the eastern reach. Foris strives to combine viticultural excellence with traditional winemaking to consistently produce wines of ripe, concentrated varietal intensity, rich texture, and inherent balance, reflective of the soils and climate unique to the Rogue Valley.
